

The Most Beautiful Golf Courses on the Planet

Whether you're an amateur or a low-handicapper, these stunning golf courses are a must for every player's bucket list

FEATURES TRAVEL GALLERY SPORT

BY BEN WINSTANLEY

PUBLISHED: WEDNESDAY 9TH NOVEMBER 2016

13 of 45

Quivira

CABO SAN LUCAS, MEXICO

At the end of the Baja peninsula, overlooking the Pacific Ocean, Quivira may be the most spectacular golf course in Latin America. Designed by the great Jack Nicklaus, this par-72 layout has several tricks up its sleeve. You won't have to wait long in your round to see for yourself. A three-quarters of a mile buggy ride up the side of a cliff sees you arrive at the 5th tee – and at roughly that moment your jaw will drop. A slim strip of fairway is all the landing area you have before this 310-yard par 4 heads steeply downhill towards the ocean and a small green. Go long, and you're into oblivion – or down the cliff, to be exact. This course turns the Mexican heat up several notches.

quiviragolfclub.com

The Most Beautiful Golf Courses on the Planet

Whether you're an amateur or a low-handicapper, these stunning golf courses are a must for every player's bucket list

FEATURES

TRAVEL

GALLERY

SPORT

BY BEN WINSTANLEY

PUBLISHED: WEDNESDAY 9TH NOVEMBER 2016

14 of 45

Quivira

CABO SAN LUCAS, MEXICO

At the end of the Baja peninsula, overlooking the Pacific Ocean, Quivira may be the most spectacular golf course in Latin America. Designed by the great Jack Nicklaus, this par-72 layout has several tricks up its sleeve. You won't have to wait long in your round to see for yourself. A three-quarters of a mile buggy ride up the side of a cliff sees you arrive at the 5th tee – and at roughly that moment your jaw will drop. A slim strip of fairway is all the landing area you have before this 310-yard par 4 heads steeply downhill towards the ocean and a small green. Go long, and you're into oblivion – or down the cliff, to be exact. This course turns the Mexican heat up several notches. quiviragolfclub.com

The Most Beautiful Golf Courses on the Planet

Whether you're an amateur or a low-handicapper, these stunning golf courses are a must for every player's bucket list

FEATURES TRAVEL GALLERY SPORT

BY BEN WINSTANLEY

PUBLISHED: WEDNESDAY 9TH NOVEMBER 2016

15 of 45

Quivira

CABO SAN LUCAS, MEXICO

At the end of the Baja peninsula, overlooking the Pacific Ocean, Quivira may be the most spectacular golf course in Latin America. Designed by the great Jack Nicklaus, this par-72 layout has several tricks up its sleeve. You won't have to wait long in your round to see for yourself. A three-quarters of a mile buggy ride up the side of a cliff sees you arrive at the 5th tee – and at roughly that moment your jaw will drop. A slim strip of fairway is all the landing area you have before this 310-yard par 4 heads steeply downhill towards the ocean and a small green. Go long, and you're into oblivion – or down the cliff, to be exact. This course turns the Mexican heat up several notches. quiviragolfclub.com

