

Maple's on the menu this fall

Make way for maple this fall as the rich ingredient spreads beyond humble stacks of flapjacks. Chefs are using Vermont's pure product in glazes for fish and meats, sauces and spreads for burgers and appetizers, and reductions in all kinds of pastries and desserts. New Hampshire's Stonehurst Manor serves it up on sausage pizza, and New York's Angry Orchard blends it with barrel-aged cider.

In Bryan-College Station, Texas, P.O.V. serves its house-made brioche pecan sticky bun with a maple bourbon glaze.
